MAY 01 – 08, 2010

$1854.00 per person dbl occupancy

Tobago is located at the southern tip of the Caribbean chain & just off the South American coast. This mountainous and green island is as rich underwater as above. The reefs benefit from nutrients which flow from Venezuela’s Orinoco river bringing a rich payload of plankton and micro organisms which attracts species such as manta rays, eagle rays, hammerheads and possibly whale sharks. The waters around Tobago support approximately 300 different species of coral, including giant tube sponges, staghorn, elkhorn, fire and starlet coral. There is also a broad range of reefs, rock pillars, wrecks and extravagant undersea gardens filled with giant sea fans, whips and plumes. Remarkable sites exist off Speyside, Little Tobago and Goat Island on the northeastern side of Tobago where you can drift dive along reefs with sponges the size of bathtubs and bushes of black coral. On the southeast coast are the exceptionally clear Nylon Pool and Buccoo Reef National Parks.

The Blue Water Inn is located on the beach of Batteaux Bay featuring a restaurant, bar, gift shop, dive shop and jetty. The resort has 38 ocean view rooms - each room has private bath, ceiling fans, AC, a balcony or porch. All dives are a 5 minute ride from the jetty by boat.
